DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 9-12, 14 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Broeksteeg.

With regard to claims 9 and 14, Broeksteeg (US 5,066,236) discloses (Fig. 5-8)

a multipole electrical connector comprising:

a housing (82) ; and

a contact set (62) with contact elements configured to receive a different counter-contact section of a mating connector, the contact elements are arranged in a single plane and form a single layer stamped grid ((col. 3, lines 67-69 – col. 4, lines 1-2) and supported in the housing (col. 4, lines 11-18).

With regard to claims 10-12, Broeksteeg discloses a forked shaped contact section (68 or 72) with limbs parallel each other and a tier bar perpendicular to the limbs.

With regard to claims 15-22, Broeksteeg discloses a method of producing a connector having a contact set (62) with contact elements configured to receive a different counter-contact section of a mating connector, the contact elements are arranged in a single plane and form a single layer stamped grid ((col. 3, lines 67-69 – col. 4, lines 1-2) and supported in the housing (col. 4, lines 11-18).

2. Claims 9-14 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hillbish et al

With regard to claims 9 and 14, Hillbish et al (US 6,041,498) discloses (Fig. 3, 4)

a multipole electrical connector comprising:

a housing (90) ; and

Art Unit: 2833

a contact set (42, 60) with contact elements configured to receive a different counter-contact section of a mating connector, the contact elements are arranged in a single plane and form a single layer stamped grid

With regard to claims 10-12, Hillbish et al disclose a forked shaped contact section with limbs parallel each other and a tier bar perpendicular to the limbs.

With regard to claim 13, Hillbish et al disclose a detent element (44).

With regard to claims 15-23, Hillbish et al disclose a method of producing a connector having a contact set (42, 60) with contact elements configured to receive a different counter-contact section of a mating connector, the contact elements are arranged in a single plane and form a single layer stamped grid .

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13 and 23 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Broeksteeg in view of Harting et al.

With regard to claim 13, Broeksteeg discloses all of the limitations except for a detent element.

Harting et al (US 6,196,853) disclose (Fig. 2) a detent element.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the Broeksteeg's contacts with the detent elements, as taught by Harting et al, to increase a contact pressure in a zone of contact mating.

With regard to claim 23, Broeksteeg when modified by Harting et al, discloses a structure of the connector which is manufactured using the steps claimed.

Art Unit: 2833

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 24-27 are allowed.

No prior art has been found to anticipate or render obvious the presently claimed subject matter. Specifically, none of the prior art of record discloses the combination of the limitations presented including the different orientation of the adjacent counter-contact sections of the mating connector, while the contact elements of the claimed connectors being disposed in a single plane.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 07/17/2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants argue that the prior art (Broeksteeg) does not disclose

(a) a multipole connector ;

(b) each of contact sections of the multipole connector configured to receive a different contact section of the mating connector.

However, (a) since the specification does not present a specified meaning for a term "multipole ", it deems to be proper interpreting the prior art's subassembly with a plurality contact elements as a multipole connector;

(b) the limitation "different contact sections of the mating connector" was interpreted as -- separate contact sections --(The Heritage Dictionary, 4th ed) since the mating contacts being configured identically.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
